

FUSION WILL KEEP SOCIALISTS OUT OF CONGRESS

Voters of New York State Warned That Action Must Be Taken Quickly to Prevent Election This Fall.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Public warning of the apparent certainty of the election of New York city districts this fall unless fusion is had to fusion, and similar possibility in four additional districts, is made today by the National Security League, accompanied by an appeal to the electorate in these districts to forestall the election of Socialists to Congress. The league, which is a strictly nonpartisan organization, suggests that the party leaders for the election of fusion candidates in the first four districts (Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Twentieth), and the serious consideration of the possibility of such action in the other four districts (Eighteenth, Twenty-second, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth), be taken.

The first four districts were only saved from the Socialists in 1918 by fusion, and in the Twelfth, Thirteenth and Twentieth the joint party candidates were able to defeat the Socialist nominees by a small margin, less than a thousand in the Twelfth and only a little over 4,000 in the Thirteenth and Twentieth.

In the other four districts, the Security League bases its warning on the menace of the Socialist vote shown by the vote for assemblymen in 1919. In the Eighteenth Congressional district the Socialist vote increased nearly 3,000 over 1918, while the Democratic vote fell off over 8,000.

In the Twenty-second district the Socialist vote in 1919 was over 3,000 greater than in 1918, and in the Twenty-third district the increase was over 5,000. The Socialists also polled nearly 3,000 more votes in 1919 in the Twenty-fourth district than in 1918.

League's Appeal.

Charles D. Orth, president of the National Security League, voices the organization's warning as follows: "In 1918 the National Security League suggested fusion to the leaders of two historic parties in New York city to prevent the election of Socialists to Congress. As a result, every Socialist candidate was defeated. This action at that time was taken when we were at war, when the shortest cut to the desired end had to be used. Now, however, the league prefers to present the facts to the electorate in the belief that the patriotic and national-spirited men and women in these districts will take the necessary public action to convince the party leaders of their duty and of the demands of public opinion.

"The fact that the next election is a presidential one will tend to make the party leaders much more wary about uniting against a common enemy than they were in 1918, when the question of fusion was a direct and simple one, unaffected by the complications of collateral politics. This danger constitutes a further reason for prompt and emphatic action of the good citizens in the districts which are involved.

"There is no longer any question about the status and objects of the Socialist party. It is international and not national. It is destructive and not constructive. It does not stand, as should all political parties, for all the people, but is a class party. Its aims and principles were conceived in hate and envy. They are nourished in the same way.

"Such of our foreign born as are included by the Socialists in their unpleasant designation, profess to be here in comfort and plenty compared with their previous condition. They also live in cleanliness and order, compared with the squalor and unhygienic conditions. Here they can rise to any distinction for which God gave them the capacity. Yet the Socialist party has the impudence and effrontery to come to this country and the adoption of the fantastic, mad and impracticable principles with which their doctrine have befuddled the minds. The National Security League appeals to the good citizenship majority of the electorate to forestall the election of Socialists to Congress and to stand for the maintenance of the constitution and of American principles and ideals.

READY FOR GREAT WHEAT HARVEST

50,000 Hands To Be Used for Cutting Grain Sown in Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, June 22.—(By International News Service.)—Fifty thousand harvest hands will be needed to harvest the 7,725,000 acres of wheat sown in Kansas, which is expected to begin within the next day or two. In fact, already in one or two isolated spots the harvest has begun, but the cutting of the grain will not be general for several days, owing to the very wet weather of the spring.

The cutting is expected to be in full blast by June 25, and the state and federal employment offices scattered throughout the state, are busy handling men. The harvest will gradually spread northward over the state, and in the northern part the first of July will see the work actually begun.

Nebraska grain is ripe early in July, and by the time the latter part of the month is reached the hundreds of thousands of harvest hands will be working in the Dakotas.

Oklahoma is just finishing its harvest, where something like 2,811,000 acres were planted to wheat. Hundreds of hands will journey through the wheat belt, from Oklahoma to Canada, "making" the harvest.

Wages in Kansas this year will be larger than usual. At a recent meeting of wheat growers of this section, held at Hutchinson, a minimum price of $1.14 a bushel was fixed for wheat. The standard wage scale for Kansas will be 70 cents an hour for a ten-hour day. Board and lodging free are also included.

No schedule for cooks, stackers or threshing engineers was announced. In Stafford county, however, farmers agreed not to pay more than $7 a day and to pay a $500 fine if they paid more.

In some places last year scales of as high as $12 and $14 were paid, and it is expected the scale may reach that this year.

BADGER LICKED BY BULLDOG IN FIGHT

JUNCTION CITY, Kas., June 22.—(By International News Service.)—The day after a badger can whip any dog that ever walked on four legs was evidenced on a rural road near here the other day.

A field, spied what they believed was a raccoon hole. Securing shovels they began to dig. Somewhat surprised, they found their quarry to be a mature badger.

A husky building owned by the boys discovered the fact about the same time. He hesitated not, however, and the battle was on.

Tower won, "face high."

COATLESS AND BEARDED, OBREGON POSES FOR PHOTO TO SHOW HOW HARD HE WORKED TO OVERTHROW RIVAL

Overthrowing Carranza was a man-size job, and in the heat of the struggle General Obregon went coatless and never even stopped to shave. The photo, taken shortly after Carranza's downfall, shows the two great leaders of the revolutionary movement, Obregon and Gonzales, surrounded by their followers in Mexico City. Note that Obregon's right arm is missing.

MUSTANG SAM, KIT CARSON AND DEAD EYE PIT ON BLOCK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22.—(By International News Service.)—"Then Young Kit drew his trusty weapon. Fired point blank at the maddest of the mad, he, the father and mother, who, clutching his 'desert flower' about the waist and with his mustang, thundered through the Indian village."

Every boy remembers how he used to seek his colored, paper-back novel of thrills from its hiding place, and, at the risk of a severe chastisement, pore frantically through the thrilling pages.

Little did he, or the father and mother, who objected, realize that some day these very novels would be regarded as literary treasures and placed upon the auction block to be sold at huge prices.

Nevertheless, Dick Deadeye and his partner, "Boarin' Bill" went under the hammer here recently at the Anderson Galleries, and brought exactly $3,182.50. As may millions wouldn't have bought the thrills which all the fascinating clan of the paper-backs have to the youth of previous generations.

Some 316 dime novels of the old style—the kind in which an Indian hid the dust at every turn of the page—were placed on sale. They represented 20 years of effort on the part of Dr. Frank P. O'Brien, of this city, who has visited 30 states in making the collection of fast disappearing little books and pamphlets relating to American pioneer life.

Let the old-timers listen to some of the titles of Dr. O'Brien's collection, and if they don't get an old-fashioned thrill, they will get a new one. "Mustang Sam," "The Mad Miner's Revenge," "Arizona Joe, the Boy Pard of Texas," "Lightning Lige," "The Firebrand of the Everglades," "Desperate Dozen," "The Fair Fiend," "Nighthawk," "Kit," or, the "Daughter of the Ranch," and many others.

Just listen to the description which Mustang Sam, the Mad Rider of the Plains, gives of himself: "You ax who be? I'm Mustang Sam, the high muckamuck of E. Puribus, who was got by a bull whale out of a leeburg. I kin yell louder, run further, ride faster, tell bigger lies, eat more possum and jump outside o' more chain lightning than any other fellow in the critter as was ever pupped. I'm the man what swam up the Big Kanyon of the Colorado on my back. I'm the firebrand of the Everglades, the desperado of the desert, the fair fiend, the nighthawk, the kit, or, the daughter of the Ranch," and many others.

The novels were bought by various collectors. The highest price was paid for 28 volumes of Badde & Co.'s week-by-week magazine, the Saturday Star Journal. Dr. Rosenbach, acting for a Western collector, got the set for $1,925.

LOTTA, ALLEGED RED, TALKS ABOUT PARTY

CINCINNATI, O., June 22.—(By International News Service.)—That the communist labor party of America has adopted as its emblem of the Bolshevik hammer and sickle, and agreed with the principles and objects of the Bolsheviks of Russia and the communists, but has refused to adopt their methods for attaining them, is the declaration made here by Lotta Burke.

Her statement was made in connection with her suit for $50,000 alleged damages, due to the raid by members of the American Legion, a communist labor headquarters. She sued local legionnaires.

Declaring that the middle class of America would be considered the bourgeoisie of Russia, she said that the communist labor party had adopted the principles of the communist as enunciated in the third international formed at Moscow.

OBREGON RECITES STORY OF LIFE HE PLANS FUTURE

BY OSCAR K. GOLL.

MEXICO CITY, June 22.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon, for several years the strongest man in Carranza's cabinet, and the only soldier in the Mexican army who has ever succeeded in leading a smashing blow against Francisco Villa, now a notorious bandit chief, when he but his army to utter rout at the battle of Celaya in April, 1915, shortly after his split with First Chief Venustiano Carranza, has relinquished his military post and turned his command of rebel forces over to the new administration. He has returned to private life in order to resume his campaign for the presidency of the republic.

In an exclusive interview with the writer Gen. Obregon declared that in the event of his election as chief executive of the republic of Mexico it would be his paramount aim not alone to establish more friendly and unquestionable relations with the government of the United States and the civilized nations of the world in general, but to give to Mexico a safe, sane, clear and honest administration—in fact, a government as well as command the respect of all the peoples of the world.

"All foreigners residing in Mexico and those interests having capital invested in the republic will be accorded the same protection as is given the Mexican citizen under our constitution and the law, and the law alone will guide my administration in the event of my election to the presidency," continued Gen. Obregon.

"Nothing will please me more than to know at the end of my administration that I have succeeded in re-establishing Mexico's integrity and the nations of the world; that my revolution-torn native land has again regained her solid financial footing and been accorded her proper place among the ranks of the respected nations of the world."

Gen. Obregon was born on February 19, 1880, in the pueblo of Siquisiva, in the state of Sonora. He received his education in the common schools of the state. From early youth it had been his ambition to become one of his country's military leaders, and while he was still a young man in the early nineties that he gathered about him a number of Mayo Indians in the vicinity of Siquisiva and formed a company of home guards as a protection against wandering outlaw bands.

It was not until some months after the Madero revolution gained strength that he joined the rebel movement and with his small command of Mayo Indians as a nucleus went to the aid of Madero against the government of Porfirio Diaz and remained in the field until the successful conclusion of the revolution. He then retired to his ranch with his followers, where he remained until advised of Madero's assassination by Gen. Victoriano Huerta, when he again called his hand together to take up arms against the usurper.

From that time on Gen. Obregon became permanently identified with the revolutionary party and it was only after Gen. Francisco Obregon's treachery in deserting Madero in his hour of need to take up a bandit's career that Obregon followed him and his men into the wilderness of the north and drove him from the state of Sonora, where he had launched a campaign of murder and depredation.

Although Obregon is known to have never been a very staunch admirer of the late president, he was appointed minister of war and marine in Carranza's cabinet as a reward for his victory over Francisco Villa's army at Celaya, during which battle Obregon lost his right arm.

After several years, however, friction developed between Carranza and Obregon which ultimately resulted in his resignation. He immediately thereafter publicly renounced his loyalty to Carranza, the candidate of the liberal party for the presidency of Mexico.

It was this pronounced by Obregon, together with the growing dissatisfaction in the ranks of the military, which brought about the final overthrow of the Carranza regime, the cause of the issuance by the chief executive of a manifesto cancelling the general presidential elections called for July. Carranza basing his action on the "unsettled conditions" prevailing throughout the republic.

INEZ, QUEEN OF CUISINE, DREAMS OF WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(By International News Service.)—"Mah man's done got it?" Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for president, is her "man," and Inez P. McWhorter, "his cook," is dreaming now of the day when she will preside over the pots and pans in the White House kitchen.

From the back porch of the nominee's Wyoming avenue home that Saturday night when the glad news was telephoned to Inez, that loyal member of the Harding household sounded a nation note that reached all the kitchens for a block around.

Her about brought about Hattie Jeffries, who cooks at the Siamese legation, in the same block, running as fast as her 200 pounds would allow, and Inez enjoyed her first social triumph.

Thoughts of the White House kitchen held no fear for Inez, who was a bright and early next morning preparing biscuits for the Harding household as usual. In fact, she is as anxious as Senator Harding to take a crack at the new job.

"Tawdy, chile, since de Senator done got elected at Chicago I ain't had a minute to call mah own," Inez reiterated for the tenth time.

"What, fraid o' dat job? You jes' don't know me! I guess I could cook jes' as well down there in the big house for President and Mrs. Harding as I have filled de bill here for over a year for Senator and Mrs. Harding."

Inez in "chief cook" in the Harding household and takes pride in the fact that she "helps about de house."

It is understood that plans have been made to prepare the Baker villa for his coming if it should happen on short notice. It is believed that the state of the president's health is all that has delayed the arrival of the White House family here.

WAGES INCREASED BY TWO BILLION IN OLD ENGLAND

BY FLOYD MACGRIFF.

LONDON, June 22.—The wages of British workmen have been increased by £2,000 million annually during the past two years, according to C. A. McCurdy, British food controller. Wages have been one of the dominant factors in the ever-increasing cost of living, he says, rising costs of raw materials being the other. The general cost of all commodities, he states, has risen 60 per cent in the past two years. High prices soon will begin to fall, he believes, but high wages will remain as a result of food, there has been less profiteering by trying to keep food prices high than necessary in Great Britain than in any other commodity owing to strict government control of essentials. He says, however, that the average household about three cents a week, but was well worth it for the food ministry has maintained lower food prices in England than those prevailing in any other part of Europe. The cost of the food ministry is about $20,000,000 and the government proposes to continue it until control can safely be removed and ordinary competition relied upon to keep prices reasonable.

High prices of most commodities have been driven up by the profiteer, McCurdy asserts, while the labor party has been responsible for trying to keep ahead of the profiteer with wage increases.

Mineralous things like rubber, timber, oil and leather, he says, have increased in price to this extent, what could be purchased for $1 two years ago now costs $5.60. Minerals such as coal, iron and steel have advanced 50 per cent in that period. Yet wholesale food prices have advanced only 5 per cent in that time and retail charges have risen but 15 per cent, making foods generally 20 per cent dearer 60 days than in 1918. The food ministry, working along lines laid down by the late Lord Rhonda, has denied the food trade the opportunity to profiteer, says McCurdy.

OYSTERS RANG BELL AT DINNER, PROFESSOR SAYS

ATLANTIC CITY, June 22.—(By International News Service.)—Electric bells were rung by oysters when they were under scientific study by Dr. Burdette C. Nelson, assistant professor of zoology at New Brunswick, N. J. The bells were rung by movements of the water when the oysters began to feed and when they closed.

Dr. Nelson addressed the oyster officials attending the twelfth annual convention of the National Association of Fisheries Commissioners here. Through tinkling bells he learned that oysters spent 20 hours of the 24 in feeding.
